

Level 2 Award in Health and Safety in Health and Social Care

Sample Examination Questions

1 A consequence of poor health and safety in the workplace is:

- A lower insurance premiums
- B safer working environment
- C higher staff morale
- D accidents, illnesses and stress

2 Which of the following is a common example of an occupational illness?

- A Stroke
- B Stress
- C Epilepsy
- D Diabetes

3 The main reason why tasks should be risk assessed is to:

- A avoid prosecution
- B create employment
- C identify a safe method
- D monitor safety performance

4 Which of the following is an example of an employee's responsibility towards health and safety in the workplace?

- A Take care of their own health and safety
- B Provide protective equipment
- C Write the health and safety policy
- D Organise the maintenance of equipment

5 What is the first action you should take if there is a spillage of water?

- A Clean it up at once
- B Display warning signs
- C Walk past it carefully
- D Write an accident report

6 A nominated fire warden in a residential care home has the main responsibility to:

- A check that the fire extinguishers are full and working
- B ensure everyone is out of the building after an alarm is sounded
- C see that all the risk assessments are signed by the manager
- D make sure room temperatures are constant throughout the building

Chartered
Institute of Environmental Health

Training Division
Chartered Institute of Environmental Health
Chadwick Court, 15 Hatfields, London SE1 8DJ
Telephone 020 7827 5800 Training Division (Option 1)
Email customersupport@cieh.org Web www.cieh.org/training

© CIEH, 2007 Printed June 2007

Answers
1 D 2 B 3 C 4 A 5 A 6 B