This document provides guidance on who can be appointed as a ‘workplace mentor’ by their organisation.

This guidance is designed for the following key audiences:

- Sponsoring organisations with overall accountability for the employees of their organisation undertaking the Chartered Environmental Health Practitioner Programme
- Those taking on the role of workplace mentor
- CIEH personnel responsible for guiding workplace mentors and practitioners on the programme
CIEH believes that organisations with functions dedicated to workplace training and professional development need to provide the best possible environment in supporting the practitioners’ journey on the Chartered Environmental Health Practitioner programme.

The role of the workplace mentor is to ensure that quality and consistency of workplace training and development is offered to the practitioner while enabling both the organisation and the practitioner a level of flexibility and professional autonomy. Workplace mentors are critical to ensuring that the organisation maintains a focus on the highest quality of training and development and that the practitioners’ needs are met.

Workplace mentors will ensure that the work of practitioners on the programme is carried out within a managed environment, in which their performance, conduct and behaviour are monitored against professional standards.

Who can be a workplace mentor?

- The workplace mentor is appointed by the sponsoring organisation
- The sponsoring organisation is responsible for all due diligence checks to ascertain the fitness of the workplace mentor
- It is not mandatory that the workplace member be a member of CIEH

Workplace mentors:

- must officially commit to upholding CIEH’s professional standards and observe the laws of the Chartered Institute
- must be working at the same sponsoring organisation as the practitioner
- must have good knowledge of the organisation and people in it
- must be committed to supporting the practitioner for the duration of a two-year programme
Role and responsibilities

To carry out their functions, workplace mentors will need to ensure that they:

• are accountable to the practitioner to which they have been appointed
• have oversight of the practitioner’s planned / executed activities, performance and professional conduct
• have systems in place for timely and effective identification, investigation and management of concerns about the practitioner which could hinder the practitioner’s success on the programme
• have effective, quality assured processes in place and can evidence this should CIEH request
• Workplace mentors carry out a mid-programme practitioner appraisal and submit this to CIEH and ensure that appropriate action is taken to help the practitioner to work towards success on the programme
• It is recommended that a practitioner meet with their mentor fortnightly, especially at the start of the programme. This can be adjusted depending on the practitioner’s needs

Support provided by CIEH to mentors

• Mentors are given access to an online learning platform which contains various learning tools to assist them
• At the start of the programme, mentors will access an e-learning induction course on the CIEH online learning platform
• Recorded webinars on the online learning platform detail programme specifications and the exact responsibilities of the mentor at each stage of the programme
• Mentors are always welcome to contact CIEH with any questions that are not addressed in the induction materials
• CIEH directs all correspondence during the programme solely to the practitioner. It is the practitioner’s responsibility to keep their mentor informed about key dates and programme deadlines
Performance management

• Where there are concerns about a practitioner’s performance, workplace mentors should carry out a performance review and implement measurable steps that the practitioner works towards to ensure success on the programme.

• Where a practitioner has concerns about a workplace mentor’s professionalism and/or commitment to the role, the practitioner should flag this to a member of the senior leadership team within the sponsoring organisation in order to resolve it or have a new mentor appointed to them.

• A member of the senior leadership team within the sponsoring organisation need only contact CIEH if the practitioner is at risk of failing their Application block at the sponsoring organisation.
